

HEART RHYTHM.
Dear the burden of the present,
Let the sorrow leave the heart;
The morning sky be pleasant,
Why the coming night be dark?
Hush!—darkened heavens lower,
Wray thy cloud round thy form;
Though the tempest rise in power,
God is faithful to the storm.
Soulsteepest hope and faith unshaken
Aliment the trusting breast,
Step by step the journey's taken,
Nearer to the land of rest.
All unseen, the Master walketh
By the tottering servant's side;
Comfortable words he talketh
While his hands behind and guide.
Grief, nor pain, nor any sorrow
Bends thy heart to Him unknown;
He today, and He tomorrow,
Grace sufficient gives His own.
Holy strings nerve and strengthen,
Long endurance wait the crown;
When the evening shadows lengthen
Then shall the Lord be known.
While the burden doth dwell.

A Way-Back Aristocrat.
Congressman Frank Lawler, of Chicago, is a man of the people—He has climbed up to a position in Congress from the lowest rounds of the social ladder. He has been a laborer, a letter carrier, a keeper of an influential gin-mill, a ward politician, a Chicago alderman, and a Congressman, successively. Mr. Lawler recently had occasion to call on Secretary Edicott, and he found that gentleman surrounded by a frozen halo which displeased him. Mr. Edicott appeared to be somewhat bored by the persistence of the member of the legislative branch of the Government, and was not at all disposed to pay much attention to him. Lawler stuck to him, however, and at last gained his point. After that the august Secretary thawed out somewhat towards the Congressman, and proceeded to give him a few points on the history of Massachusetts, especially on the Edicott family. He spoke of the glories of the Colonial days, and incidentally mentioned that his ancestors were among the fore most in Massachusetts. Warming up to his theme—and this is about the only subject that will warm him—he proceeded to trace the family back until he had passed down to where the Adamses first arose on the genealogical horizon, and wound up by saying:
"Why, Mr. Lawler, we have succeeded in tracing the Edicott family back to the earliest stage of the Norman conquest of England. In fact, the Edicotts were known before William the Conqueror was heard of."

"William the conqueror the blank," replied Mr. Lawler. "Daring the past summer, when my my legislative duties have not been so pressing, I have paid a good deal of attention to the early history of the Lawler family. William the conqueror! Why, he's nowhere. I found that the Lawlers were a prominent family on the earth even before the flood."
To say that Mr. Edicott was astonished would scarcely express his feelings. He almost gasped for breath, but at length a happy thought struck him.
"Mr. Lawler," said he with withering scorn in his voice, "if you can trace the Lawler's back before the flood, how is it that we never heard anything of the family in the ark?"
For a moment, and for a moment only, the Chicago man hesitated. Then he recovered himself and instantly replied:
"Mr. Secretary, I would have you to understand, sir, that the Lawlers were a respectable family. They had yachts and horses, and every thing else that was necessary for gentlemen in the antediluvian days. The Lawlers, sir, had a boat of their own, and didn't have to go into the ark."—Boston Traveller.

An Old Story.
The old story of the early bird and the worm, that used to be told to enforce the virtuous practice of early rising, becomes in a later and more degenerate age, somewhat less effective by turning attention to the worm's views of the affair. Recently it has appeared with a new amendment which restores all the point and piquancy of the original.

A father had been lecturing his son upon the evils of staying out late at night and getting up late in the morning. "You will never amount to anything," he continued "unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember that the early bird catches the worm."
"How about the worm, father," inquired the young man, borrowing the old sarcasm, "wasn't he rather foolish to get up so early?"
"My son," replied the old man solemnly, "that worm hadn't been to bed at all. He was on his way home."

What Am I to Do?
The symptoms of biliousness are unappetite but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.
The digestive system is wholly out of order and diarrhoea or constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

It Made a Difference.
"Do you get many letters from your intended, Sue?"
"Yes, indeed, Mame; I get one every day."
"Does he send you k's and b's?"
"Only k's. He's English, you see."

VIRGINIA: At a court held for the county of Accomac, on the 2nd day of February, 1888. In the matter of the payment and delivery of the estate of Benjamin T. W. Byrd, deceased, to his legal representative, without Refunding Bonds being given.
On motion of Tabitha Ann Byrd, a legatee of the said Benjamin T. W. Byrd, deceased, by James H. Fletcher, Jr., her attorney, it appearing to the court that a report of the accounts of the transactions of James H. Fletcher, Jr., administrator with the will annexed of the estate of the said Benjamin T. W. Byrd, deceased, and of the debts and demands against the said decedent's estate, has been filed in the office of this court; and it further appearing to the court that more than one year has elapsed since the qualification of the said administrator; it is ordered that the creditors of the said decedent do show cause, if any they can, on the 3rd day of the next March term of this court, against the payment and delivery of the estate of the said decedent to his legal representative without refunding bonds being given by the said legatee; and that a copy of this order shall be published once a week for four successive weeks in the PENINSULA ENTERPRISE, a newspaper published at Accomac, C. H., Va., and also posted at the front door of the court house of this county on the first days of two successive terms of this court.

THE PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.
A. S. ABELL & CO., PUBLISHERS, BALTIMORE.
The Baltimore Weekly Sun continues to preserve its position, maintained for many years as a model Family Newspaper. During the past year, in order to accommodate the great variety of matters seeking admission in its columns, it has been found necessary to issue a supplement almost every week, presenting a home newspaper unapproached for interest and variety. Its literary treasures are selected with discriminating taste and with special reference to the entertainment and instruction of the family circle. Its Agricultural and Veterinary Departments, edited by specialists, have a host of good value to the farmer, while the Fresh Air Articles, Household Recipes, etc., have continued to be a source of a week's interest and instruction to the family. The latest news up to the hour of publication is given in its correspondence and telegraphic dispatches, while its columns, besides presenting current events in an impartial spirit, afford much wholesome advice and suggestion on social, economic and domestic topics. The present age of Congress, the Maryland and other Legislatures, the National Fiftieth Conventions, and the Presidential and Congressional elections are among the important features that will be prominently and copiously presented in its columns during 1888. Full commercial, financial, cotton, cattle, markets and stock reports up to the hour of going to press.

Gentlemen:—I have been using your Guano for the past three years and am frank to confess that THEY ARE BETTER. THEREFORE CHEAPER THAN ANY I HAVE EVER USED. I take pleasure in recommending them to our farmers. In reference to its use this season will say I made an extra crop of round Potatoes, and as fine stock as I ever saw. I shall use the "Imperial" in the future. Yours truly, WM. H. KELLAM.

Dear Sirs:—I used your Guano last season and was so favorably impressed with it that I did not hesitate to buy this season, neither do I hesitate to say IT IS THE BEST FERTILIZER I HAVE EVER USED. I used 5 bags, and some fish mixed with it, and planted 3 bbls. of large size Potatoes, which of course do not run well in planting, and I shipped 176 bbls. of fine stock I suppose as went to market from this country. It is also proper to state that part of my crop was destroyed by bugs. If it had not been for this trouble I believe I should have delivered 200 bbls. I take great pleasure in recommending the goods to our friends. Yours respectfully, JNO. ALFRED AMES.

Gentlemen:—After having used your "Potato, Pea and Bean" Guano on Spring crop of Potatoes, and getting highly satisfactory results, I feel glad that I can recommend it to others. I used in along side of Peruvian Guano, and the "IMPERIAL" WAS DECIDEDLY BEST. I shall want it in the future. Respectfully, EDWARD W. KELLAM.
